

W5 Reflection DAT256

Stefan Chan

May 2019

1 What do I want to learn or understand better?

This week I got to learn how to work with the database, mostly in getting information or updating information in the database. Beyond this, the content I implemented was similar in nature to what I already have done in this project. Since there is not much time left (two more sprints at maximum), it might not be feasible to learn something new for the remainder of the project.

2 How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

I personally feel that this question is not applicable, as I was the person that needed help, not the one helping.

3 What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

Like last week, I have been part of group meetings and is planning to be a more active participant in team reflections and review retrospective. The reason was that in the previous week I was mostly sitting with code and (in my opinion) not being active enough in the discussion. This mean that I have to be more attentive and active in the review meeting, which in turn means not sitting with code. Since the meeting was postponed, this means more time to work with the code which means not having to sit with it during the meeting.

4 What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I have finished implementing an user story regarding editing a spots information and syncing it with the database. As the database has been implemented,

I've also finished implementing the first user story assigned to me which was shelved for needing a database in order to have any customer value. Both user stories need testing before being considered done, and since the next sprint starts tomorrow as of writing, I need to improve my ability in finishing work assigned to me. This can be done by me not scheduling my time poorly, or asking other available members of the team for help.